Editor's note

Dear Readers,

I am pleased to share with you the 10th edition of the SNG & Partners' Newsletter for the month of May, 2023.

It is noteworthy that the Hon'ble Supreme Court of India has held that Unstamped Arbitration Agreements are invalid in law. Further, in another landmark judgement, the Supreme Court has held that arbitration proceedings are not possible in the absence of arbitration clause in the principal agreement. While dealing with the matters under the IBC, the Supreme Court has held that the waterfall mechanism is distinct in the IBC and Companies Act as the objective of both Acts is different. The RBI circulars on KYC and LIBOR transition are important.

I hope you will find this edition useful and informative.

Best wishes,

A. ARBITRATION

1. SC rules: Unstamped Arbitration Agreements are invalid in law

The Supreme Court explained that an arbitration agreement within a contract exigible for Stamp Duty could not be enforced if it is inadequately stamped or signed. The decision was upheld by a 3:2 ratio, with Justice Bose and Justice Ravikumar agreeing with Justice Joseph. They concluded that an instrument subject to stamp duty, including an arbitration clause, but not stamped cannot be considered a legally enforceable contract under Section 2(h) of the Contract Act and is not enforceable under Section 2(g) of the Contract Act. However, Justice Rastogi and Justice Roy opined that the arbitration agreement could still be enforced, even if the substantive instrument lacked stamp duty or had insufficient stamping, as the deficiency could be rectified.

2. SC Expounds: No Arbitration is possible when Dispute Arises from a Non-Arbitrable Agreement

The Supreme Court declared that arbitration proceedings were not feasible if no arbitration clause was present in agreements other than the principal agreement. The Court upheld that the primary agreement and the other agreements had no conjunction; therefore, the arbitration clause could not apply to the other agreements.

3. SC Upholds: Primacy of Pre-Amendment Law in Cases of Notice invoking Arbitration before Enforcement of Amendment Act, 2015

The Supreme Court in a bench comprising Hon'ble Mr. Justice M.R. Shah and Hon'ble Mr. Justice C.T. Ravikumar upheld the judgment of the Telangana High Court stating that in situations where the notice seeking arbitration was served prior to the promulgation of the Amendment Act, 2015, and the plea for the appointment of an arbitrator was filed after it had come into effect, the legal system prevailing before the amendment shall be in force. Hence, the Arbitration & Conciliation Act, 1996 shall govern the matter.

4. Gujarat High Court Expounds: An Arbitration Clause in a Partnership Deed is rendered invalid after the Firm is dissolved

Hon'ble Justice Biren Vaishnav of the Gujarat High Court has held that the arbitration clause in a partnership deed cannot be used to refer disputes between partners to arbitration once the partnership has been dissolved.

The case pertained to an arbitration clause that allowed disputes related to the "dealing of the firm" to be referred to arbitration.

5. Bombay High Court rules: Invalid Board Resolution a curable procedural error, and can't result in the termination of Arbitration Proceedings

The Bombay High Court ruled that a defect in the board resolution authorizing a person to initiate arbitration is curable and only a procedural irregularity.

Therefore, such a defect cannot result in the rejection of claims or termination of arbitral proceedings, according to the court. Justices K.R. Shriram and Rajesh S. Patil held that the requirement of a board resolution authorizing a person to take legal action on behalf of a company is procedural and defects in it cannot defeat the substantive rights of a party.

B. INSOLVENCY AND BANKRUPTCY CODE (IBC)

1. SC rules: Waterfall mechanism distinct in IBC and Companies Act as the objective of both Acts is different

The Supreme Court expounded that the Legislature made a conscious decision to exclude the sums such as provident fund, pension fund and gratuity fund out of workmen dues and to put workmen dues for 24 months preceding the liquidation date at an equal pedestal with the dues owed to the secured creditor. This decision cannot be claimed to be unconstitutional.

It was categorically held that the workman and the secured creditor can be kept at an equal footing only when the secured creditor has relinquished its security and the same is the part of the sage of the liquidation pool.

The broader goal of the Insolvency and Bankruptcy Code, 2016 (hereinafter referred to as “IBC”) is to explore whether the Corporate Debtor can be revived or not and if not, then economic assets have to be maximized and hence, the waterfall mechanism should be seen in light of this. Conflicting interests must be balanced when economics are involved.

Lastly, the Bench highlighted the difference between the waterfall mechanism given in the Companies Act, 2013 and the IBC stating that the waterfall mechanism is based on a structured mathematical formula and therefore, the hierarchy is created in terms of payment of debts. Striking off any one thing would disbalance the entire structure and disrupt the working as the interest of all the stakeholders would get affected. Further, the waterfall mechanism as envisaged under the IBC is way more beneficial than the one in the Companies Act, 2013.

2. NCLAT, Delhi expounds: Date of default not same for borrower and guarantor

The NCLAT, Principal Bench Delhi noted that as per Article 137 of the Limitation Act, 1963, the period begins when the right to apply accrues. In the present case, the Corporate Guarantor is the Corporate Debtor and therefore, what needs to be seen was when was the default committed by the Corporate Guarantor.

The Bench ruled that as per the Insolvency and Bankruptcy Code, 2016 (as “IBC”), both Corporate Guarantor and the Principal Borrower become liable to pay when the default is committed. The default even though committed by the Principal Borrower, would become due against both Principal Borrower and the Corporate Guarantor.

Further, the loan agreement with the Principal Borrower and the Bank as well as the Deed of Guarantee between the Bank and the guarantor are different transactions and therefore, the liability of the Guarantor would be extracted from the Deed of Guarantee.

In the present case, as per the Deed of Guarantee, the Guarantor would become liable on default committed by the Principal Borrower but for initiation of an action, a demand must be made. Therefore, the date of default for the Principal Borrower and Guarantor could not be taken as the same.

4. SC Clarifies: Only Competent Authority can Declare Ineligibility of Resolution Applicant under Section 164 ②(b) of the Companies Act, 2013

The Supreme Court confirmed that the ineligibility of a resolution applicant under Section 164②(b) of the Companies Act, 2013 cannot be presumed unless the competent authority declares the disqualification. The Court held that such an interpretation is necessary to ensure that the Insolvency and Bankruptcy Code, 2016 (“IBC”), is not misused by promoters or directors of companies who may be disqualified under the Companies Act but seek to participate in the insolvency resolution process.

5. SC Explicates: NCLT’s Obligation to Admit Application under Section 7 of the IBC in case of default

The Supreme Court elucidated that once the National Company Law Tribunal (“NCLT”) was satisfied with the occurrence of a default, it was devoid of any discretion to refuse admission of the application under Section 7 of the Insolvency and Bankruptcy Code, 2016 (“IBC”).

The Apex Court noted that even the non-payment of a fraction of the debt that had matured and necessitated settlement would unequivocally amount to default on the part of the corporate debtor.
